

TRY IT AND SEE!

Lift your corns or calluses off with fingers! Doesn't hurt a bit!

A noted Cincinnati chemist discovered a new ether compound and called it freezone and it now can be had in tiny bottles as here shown for a few cents from any drug store.

You simply apply a few drops of freezone upon a tender corn or painful callus and instantly the soreness disappears, then shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can just lift it off with the fingers.

No pain, not a bit of soreness, either when applying freezone or afterwards and it doesn't even irritate skin.

Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes, also toughened calluses just shrivel up and lift off so easy. It is wonderful! So magical. It works like a charm. Genuine freezone has a yellow label. Don't accept any except with the yellow label.—Advertisement.

IMMORTALITY OF THE SOUL OF MAN

"The Immortality of the Soul was the subject discussed by Dr. John B. Koehn at the First Methodist church last night and the congregation present was much impressed with his argument. "To save the soul," he said, "means the saving of the body and one should therefore think more of food for the soul than of the temporal things that satisfy only the body."

"The soul is immortal," he continued, "and the things we seek to satisfy some desire of the body passes with time. Not so with the soul. It never passes excepting from the body to enter the portals of heavens, if we have lived an honest and upright life. If we have given more thought to the immortality of the soul than we have to the pleasures that satisfy our whims and desires, then our soul shall know the joys that no one who has practiced self sacrifice and led a life that is in accord with the Christian teachings of the Creator of the universe."

FORMER OGDENITE IS CONSOLED BY HIS STRONG FAITH

A remarkable testimony of faith in the divinity of the books of doctrine of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints was received by Chief of Police Thomas E. Browning recently, in a letter from Fred W. Zeidler, a former Ogden printer who was associated with the police executive while he was following the same trade. Zeidler was well known hereabouts in the old days of the trade and old printers still living in the city will probably remember him. He is now in the Printers' home at Colorado Springs, having been received there two years ago on account of failing eyesight.

"Dear Thomas E. Browning, "A little over two years ago I bid you farewell in front of the old White House at Salt Lake City. I was almost blind and was about to start on my journey to the printers' home. Although I am enjoying splendid health at present, my eyes have not improved and I am writing these lines in a kind of semi-darkness."

"During the two years I have heard but little from the west, forgotten by the old former friends and leading a life of seclusion, though fairly well acquainted with what is going on in the outside world, for the daily papers of Denver are being read to the 'blind class' every day for two hours immediately after dinner."

"Much has been said and written about the 'home,' but there is something even more important than hope that has occupied my mind since my residence here. When I last saw you you gave me the advice to 'read up' in 'our standard works of the church' and thus employ my leisure hours here profitably. On my arrival here, I was required to fill out my entrance blank, giving the place of my nativity and my religion. No one before me has ever entered the home claiming the Mormon faith, and I myself realized that I was not what I ought to have been in forming my duties as a member of the church. But as I have never identified myself with any other church, never denied it and always defended it in my weakness, trying to live up to its teachings, I confessed my faith."

"I am thankful today that I did not fail to boldly declare myself, for the last two years have been important in my mental development and my spiritual growth. Not being able to read anything at all during the first year, I was eager to have anything read to me that would relieve the monotony, for the daily newspapers did not satisfy me with their exciting war news. I had become more introspective and reflective, had acquired judgment and discrimination and had changed my mental and spiritual food. I, therefore, decided to concentrate my mind on the three standard works of the church—the New Testament, the Book of Mormon and the Doctrine and Covenants. Having been reared and educated a Lutheran, I was fairly well posted on the four gospels, but I wanted to read the Book of Mormon, especially in case I should go totally blind. "Humbly, reverently, and intensely sincere, I started, with the aid of my magnifying glass. It was slow and difficult, line for line, and word for word. I just finished the 100 years B. C.—the Book of Alma and the Book of Helaman—the most important epoch in the history of the Nephites and the Lamanites, when the Nephites changed their form of government and the time of reckoning—the beginning of the reign of judges, the time of Alma and Amulek, Ammon and Aaron, Judge Pahoran and Maroni, and Lehi and Nephi, the sons of Helaman, concluding the 600 years B. C. with Samuel, the Lamanite. Chapter by chapter, book by book, have I gone over the 100 years of the history of the Nephites and the Lamanites. While the reading was a strain, I was reading the book of books. "I am today firmly convinced that the Prophet Joseph Smith translated the records of Mormon by the power of the Lord; that he is indeed the great restorer of the gospel. When you learn that I have shared my room for over two years with two volumes, I can now understand many things that were dark to me before, but I regret that I had to be called several times."

"The bible of the eastern hemisphere in my youth, but the Book of Mormon in my old age! Thank God, he has humbled me in my affliction! I thank Him every day of my life that I can now understand many things that were dark to me before, but I regret that I had to be called several times."

"Hoping that my lines will find you in good health, and that, as God has blessed me with health, I hope and trust that after I get my pension this spring, I will be able to do something to help build up and be of some use to somebody. With best regards to you and family, I remain, "Your friend, "FRED W. ZEIDLER."

LITTLE GIRL HAD CROUP.
Every mother knows and fears croup. Mrs. R. M. Raney, R. F. D. 2, Stanford, Ky., writes: "My little girl had been having croup every few nights. I began to give her a few drops of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound every two or three hours, and that night she slept well, never coughed any, and the next day her cold was gone. To all of my friends I am saying, 'Get a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar for la grippe, coughs, colds and croup.' A genuine cure." A. R. McIntyre Drug Co.—Advertisement.

MUCH EXTRA WORK IN MARCH.
It's between seasons now, when few persons perspire as much as health demands. The result is double work for the kidneys, for the kidneys must throw out waste matter from the system that is eliminated through the pores when persons perspire. Overworked, weak or disordered kidneys need help now. B. H. Stone, Reading, n. remedies: "Whenever I need a kidney remedy, I return to Foley's Kidney Pills. They have been worth their weight in gold to me." A. R. McIntyre Drug Co.—Advertisement.

EVAN STEPHENS. HYMNS TO BE SUNG

Professor Evan Stevens, former director of the Salt Lake Tabernacle choir and a pioneer composer of Mormon hymns, came to Ogden today and will remain in the city until tomorrow evening as the guest of the chorists and organists of the Weber Stake Sunday schools.

Tomorrow morning, the veteran chorister will attend one of the Sunday schools of the stake, and tomorrow afternoon the monthly union meeting of the stake Sunday school workers. At the latter meeting, he will deliver an address on "Music" and all of his former pupils and friends are invited to be present.

Chorister Ellen H. Thomas of the stake board has planned to have a number of Prof. Stevens' compositions sung during the afternoon, among the list being "Utah We Love Thee," "For the Strength of the Hills," "True to the Faith," "My Valley Home" and "My Western Home." Prof. Stevens' "Utah We Love Thee" has been adopted as the state hymn.

ESCAPES THE FATE OF EDITH CAVELL

Mlle. Marcel Semmer, who has just been presented with the Cross of the Legion of Honor, narrowly escaped suffering the fate of Edith Cavell. She is a native of a village in northern France, and when her home was occupied recently by German forces she refused to move out, staying to nurse wounded French soldiers. The German commander threatened her if she did not leave, but she remained long enough to make sure her patients were well on the way to recovery. She then slipped out of town and journeyed to Paris, where she was hailed as a heroine.

TREMONTON LOSES IN ITS WATER SUIT

How far a municipal corporation can go to take an owner's property against his consent under the law of eminent domain yesterday constituted the gist of the decision to the supreme court of Utah in the case of the town of Tremonton, respondent, against William Johnson of Box Elder county, whose property rights to a certain spring were affected.

The case and the decision are of vital importance to every one of the many towns and cities in the state of Utah now considering the securing of a new water supply. The state board of health in its annual "clean town" contests makes a specialty of calling the attention of town authorities to the absolute necessity of having a pure water supply. Many municipalities are now engaged in endeavoring to secure such a supply.

In the case before the supreme court the town of Tremonton, proceeding under the statute covering eminent domain, attempted to condemn a spring owned by Johnson, and to appropriate the water for the use of the inhabitants of the town.

Johnson denied that it was necessary to condemn the spring and put the question of damages up to a jury. The court awarded $4000 damages. The court handed down an opinion affecting every municipal corporation in Utah, in which it says in part: "It seems very clear that no condemnation proceedings can be instituted by a city or town unless the council board of trustees deem it necessary for the public good, and that the judgment of the city council or board of trustees to that effect must be expressed in the form of a resolution or ordinance."

"After the passage of the resolution or ordinance one-third of the resident taxpayers may protest against the institution of such proceedings, and if they do protest to that number, the whole question must be submitted to the vote of the taxpayers, and it requires a majority in order that the proceedings be commenced. If no protest is made no doubt the resolution or ordinance, if properly passed, is sufficient to authorize the institution of condemnation proceedings. We have a statute which prescribes the necessary steps to be taken before commencing such proceedings."

"The owner whose property is sought to be appropriated against his consent certainly has the right to insist that the statute be followed."

The court reverses the judgment of the district court of Box Elder county, with directions to grant a new trial and with other instructions.

The case is of immediate interest to all owners of property in Utah, whose holdings might come under the claim of eminent domain for any public purpose.

SEVEN BILLS ARE SIGNED ON FRIDAY

Assurance that the advantages and opportunities for settlement in the state of Utah shall be kept before the world was guaranteed yesterday when Governor Simon Bamberger signed the senate bill No. 101, relating to appropriation for investigation and demonstration for the agricultural development of the state.

Another development measure of vital importance signed by the chief executive was senate bill No. 101, relating to appropriation for investigation and demonstration for the agricultural development of the state.

To assure adequate care for the determination of the ore riches of Utah the governor signed senate bill No. 147 from the appropriations committee, providing an appropriation for the maintenance of a mining and metallurgical research department in the Utah engineering experimenting station, limiting the expenses of this department, defining its purposes and directing the making of reports.

Senate bill 71, by Armstrong, providing that all leases for more than fifty head of horses, two head of cattle or 500 head of sheep be filed in the office of the county recorder.

Senate bill 66, relating to churches and religious societies, providing the manner of amending articles of incorporation; how upon the death of ecclesiastical trustees the property held in trust shall vest in his successor when appointed; how such property may be conveyed or incumbered; granting certain powers as to such property located out of this state, and that repeal of previous statute shall not affect rights of corporations organized thereunder.

Senate concurrent resolution No. 8, appropriating $1,000 for an oil portrait of former Governor William Spry.

NEBRASKA FRIENDS MEET IN OGDEN

Judge W. A. Prince, a distinguished lawyer and legislator of Grand Island, Neb., here on a brief visit, yesterday afternoon visited District Judge Alfred W. Agee in the latter's chambers at the court house. They are old friends and had not met in more than twenty years. They were cronies in Nebraska's first period of progressive development, two decades ago, when they were leading lawyers and Judge Agee also was lieutenant governor.

During their reunion, Judge Agee and his old friend were as merry as schoolboys, recalling the joys of the past and swapping reminiscent stories.

After his friend's departure, Judge Agee said: "He is Prince by name, and prince by nature, as the term is commonly used. To meet him again is a joy, indeed. Old friendships, surviving through the years and growing stronger, are the silver cords attached to the gold bowl of happiness."

Judge Prince marveled at the scenic beauty of Ogden's surroundings and said Ogden is assured of maximum development and universal prestige as a city of ideal homes and business opportunities.
